

Elderly with ID can be active!

AIDA is an Erasmus+ (KA2) project designed to target elderly people with intellectual disabilities. People from this group often lack the same quality of life as other people of the same age.

The main focus of the project is to improve the quality of VET courses for teaching staff and field professionals, giving them the opportunity to be trained in the framework of care for elderly people with intellectual disabilities, so that the knowledge they acquire can then be transferred to their students.
